DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-4,9-15,20-22 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nyhart et al. (5553137).

As per claims 1,12, Nyhart discloses an acoustic echo canceller (Col 1 lines 21-40) that trains on ‘non-training’ audio.

As per claims 2,13,21, it is rejected as per claim 1.

As per claims 3,10,11,14,22, it may be audio.

As per claims 4,15, examiner reads any device that processes audio with acoustic echoes as a computer, portable computer, and a phone.

As per claims 9,20, the examiner contends that any initialization stage for a communications device would inherently comprise and indication to the training portion as to when to start (a number of training calls being reached) for the purpose of telling the training when to start.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 23-26,5,16,7,8,18,19, rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nyhart (5553137) as applied to claims 1,12.

As per claim 23, it is rejected as per the claim 1 rejection, however Nyhart doesn't disclose the specifics of the terminal where the echo canceller is implemented.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of this application that an echo canceller could be implemented on a phone (which is also a conferencing device) or computer with a known interface (USB,1394) that produces the external audio signal for training for the purpose of removing echoes from those devices.

As per claims 24-26, they are rejected as per the claim 1 rejection.

As per claims 5,16, Nyhart discloses the audio training signal for the canceller, but does not specify matching the sampling rate of the training to the application that would need the echo cancelling (telephone or conference).

The examiner contends it would have been obvious to utilize training signals that matched the spectral (including sampling rate) characteristics of the data to which the echo canceller was to be used with so as to train the echo canceller properly.

As per claim 7,8,18,19, examiner contends it would have been obvious to balance and manage the processor resources in a given system as necessary to perform the disclosed functions of communicating and echo cancelling.

4. Claims 6,17 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nyhart (5553137) as applied to claims 1,12, and further in view of applicant's admitted prior art (spec).

As per claims 6,17, Nyhart's system comprises a speaker, and mic (fig. 1), but does not give specifics of the echo canceller.

Applicant's admitted prior art discloses well known adaptive filters used to perform the echo cancelling. The digital system inherently comprises means to delay all signals paths so as to synchronize the signals ( to give 'real time' bidirectional communication.) (spec pages 1 and 2). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of this application to implement well known echo canceller features like a filter and delay means for the purpose of implemented the disclosed canceller.
